Statement from PSC Commissioner Mark Meyer On the Sale of the Kewaunee Nuclear Power Plant November 19, 2004

“Given the information before us at this time, I believe the risks of this sale outweigh the benefits. Kewaunee is a baseload facility that provides reliable, low-cost energy to Wisconsin’s homes and businesses. Now is not the time to let go of such a valuable resource—particularly as the state embarks on a major construction program that will impact rates. I believe the state’s electrical needs are best served by reliable operations, reasonable rates and careful environmental analysis. I was not convinced that such high standards would continue to apply to Kewaunee without state oversight.”
